New City Academy pupils arriving for their first day of school in their distinctive red blazers

FOURTH ACADEMY

By
Marcel Reinard

THE new City Academy in Homerton welcomed its first pupils on 3 September.

The school's 220 Year Seven students walked through glass panel doors, proudly wearing new red blazers, into a building with a clear focus on high academic – as well as environmental – performance.

The academy is the fourth to be opened in the borough, joining Mossbourne, which confidently beat the GCSE A-C national average last year; Bridge, which opened in 2007; and Petchey, now in its fourth year. The City Academy, in Homerton High Street, will eventually cater for 900 11 to 16-year-old pupils, as well as offering 240 sixth-form places.

Parents looked on from the school gates, some more anxious than the 11 to 12-year-olds starting their first day. Principal Mark Emmerson, former head at Stoke Newington High School, said: "This is an exciting moment for the area and we believe we can make a huge difference to raising levels of achievement and lifting the horizons of young people. We have fantastic resources and fantastic teachers."

“We believe we can make a huge difference to raising levels of achievement”

Five years in the making, the academy focuses on business. Students from local primary schools and Hackney Community College were involved with architects and designers to create the E9 learning environment that uses sustainability concepts and practices.

A natural air under-floor heat pump, rather than air conditioning, has been designed to provide warmth during the winter and cooling in summer. There are also solar panels on the building's exterior and a glass bubble roof to maximise natural lighting and cut energy use.

The school has been sponsored by KPMG and the City of London

Corporation, and was developed in partnership with The Learning Trust.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "I'm pleased City Academy has opened on time and on budget, alongside the three new schools already completed, and our existing schools, all of which are being rebuilt or refurbished."

Message from the Mayor

New school and GCSE grades are a positive sign

THREE years ago, I promised that the Council, working with the Government and The Learning Trust, would create an extra 1,800 secondary school places across the borough by opening five new Academies, as well as rebuilding or refurbishing all of our existing secondary schools through the Building Schools for the Future programme.

New arrivals go through the school gates at the new City Academy

This week has seen the opening of the fourth of these new schools, the City of London Academy, in Homerton, following the successful launches of Mossbourne, Petchey and Bridge, all of which opened on time and on budget and are already hugely popular with students and parents. Our fifth new school, the Skinners Academy, is on course to open next year.

Last month also saw the publication of GCSE results achieved by the first students to graduate from our first new school, Mossbourne Community Academy, where 84 per cent of students got five good GCSEs including English and Maths. This is a fantastic achievement, which is a tribute to Headteacher Sir Michael Wilshaw and his team, parents and governors of the school and, of course, the students themselves.

There were also some great results at Cardinal Pole, Our Lady's and Yesodey Hatorah schools, all of which contributed to a significant improvement in results across the borough, which means that it looks as though Hackney got better GCSE results than the national average for the first time ever. Well done to all of our schools and our young people for doing so well this year.

Making amends

By
Miranda Yates

A GROUND-breaking scheme that sees young offenders doing their bit for the community has won praise from Justice Secretary, Jack Straw.

The minister met some of the teenagers making amends for past crimes during a visit to the Council's Youth Offending Team (YOT) on 3 September.

The high profile visit helped to promote the project – part of the Government's £100million Youth Crime Action Plan (YCAP) – which tackles offending through 'tough enforcement, non-negotiable support, early intervention and prevention'.

To date, more than 45 young offenders from Hackney have grown organic vegetables and taken part in conservation work on Hackney Marshes.

“It has helped me a lot because it keeps me out of trouble and takes up a lot of my time”

They have also made signs and furniture, including tables and bookcases and garden rakes, out of reclaimed wooden pallets. The products are then sold, with all proceeds donated to the charity Macmillan Nurses.

The reparation work at the team's Daubeney Road base aims to make young offenders face the consequences of their offences. It is one of seven projects funded by a £700,000 YCAP grant.

Plans are in the pipeline to extend the initiative so young offenders can take on work that has been requested by residents.

Deon, 17, has now completed 35 hours of reparation work. He said: “It has helped me a lot because it keeps me out of trouble and takes up a lot of my time. I think I want to go into painting and decorating as a job.”

Marcel Reinard

CONSTRUCTION work at Clapton Girls' Technology College reached a crucial stage when the framework of a new building was completed.

Following the demolition of an existing building in May, work started on a new assembly hall, performance space and classrooms at the vocational college in Laura Place. A 'topping out' ceremony was held on 28 August, when the final beam was lifted into position, watched by the construction team, architects and teachers. Traditionally, this is marked by placing a tree or branch on the topmost rafter.

The 103-year-old school has already undergone major refurbishments since last year, including the renovation of the 100-year-old Pankhurst building. A new dining pavilion, modernised learning resource centre and contemporary classrooms have also been built, surrounded by sustainable external landscaping. Other renovations such as a new courtyard, and remodelled science and arts spaces, are due to be finished by next summer. A school spokesperson said: "Once the work is completed, students will have buildings and green spaces that reflect both the past and present."

The work is funded by the Government's Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme, developed by the Council and The Learning Trust. The £167million scheme will see every secondary and special needs school in the borough refurbished or rebuilt by 2015. Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "The BSF programme will dramatically change the way we teach and learn in Hackney and create modern, fit-for-purpose facilities that serve the whole community."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Council officers patrol the streets as part of a joint operation with police to enforce licensing laws

Licensing crackdown

A JOINT crackdown on venues flouting licensing laws saw a late night party shut down.

During a day of enforcement on 21 August, Council licensing and noise pollution officers joined police and street wardens to carry out a patrol of the borough. Cordy House, EC2, was found to be hosting an event where alcohol was sold and a DJ playing without a licence. Officers issued a closure notice and the premises agreed to shut at 10.40pm.

The patrols visited Stoke Newington, Shoreditch and Dalston, monitoring the management of outside spaces and checking that licensees were keeping to the rules. During the day, trading standards officers, police and cadets carried out underage cigarette and alcohol sale checks. One off-licence in Hoxton sold tobacco to an under 18-year-old. This could result in the prosecution of the seller or the owner of the premises.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "These joint initiatives are an essential part of tackling problem premises and catching them in the act; whether it be selling to underage children or hosting unlicensed club nights. In Hackney we listen to our residents when they come to us with complaints and we make sure we put a stop to any illegal or anti-social activities."

Fighting fire together

FIREFIGHTERS in Stoke Newington are preparing to welcome residents to a station open day on 12 September.

As part of the first London Fire Brigade Safety Week from 12 to 18 September, people are invited to become fire safety champions, learning how to make sure that they, their families, and neighbours are safe from fire.

The event will take place from 11am to 4pm at the station in Stoke Newington Church Street, N16.

Christina Oree, Roshaan Nadira and David Grant (L-R) among the colourful costumes they are getting ready for the second Hackney One Carnival on 27 September

By
Emma Britton

BEERAAHAAR Sweet Combination carnival band are fresh from success at Notting Hill, and looking forward to the next big date in their calendar – Hackney One Carnival.

The colourful event returns on 27 September, following its launch as part of the Cultural Olympiad for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games last year.

Bringing together 600 performers from a variety of carnival groups, it celebrates a range of cultures in the borough through energetic dance, uplifting music and spectacular costumes.

Christina Oree and David Grant founded

Beeraahaar Sweet Combination in 1993, and helped to bring carnival to Hackney for the first time. From humble beginnings of just 15, the group now boasts more than 300 performers today.

Surrounded by the glittering costumes and bejewelled head dresses that the group will don for the carnival, Christina, 76, and David, 72, are confident that Hackney One Carnival can grow to become the biggest and best carnival in Europe by 2012.

“We have so many different cultures in the borough,” Christina said. “It’s not only carnival culture; it’s also the pearly kings and queens, clowns, and the samba group. If we get these people involved and working together we could be bigger and better than Notting Hill.”

The carnival grew out of Hackney’s annual Mare de

Gras and has brought a spirit of unity, which Christina and David believe are the key to its success. Grandmother of five, Christina added: “Hackney One Carnival has improved the art of carnival because it brings everyone together. We depict the art so everyone can see what goes on in Hackney.”

With different ages, cultures and backgrounds all coming together in energetic performances, the colourful procession through the borough’s streets celebrates all that is great about Hackney.

Roshaan Nadira, 13, is Christina’s granddaughter and has been taking part in carnivals since she can remember. She said: “I love the feel of carnival. Everyone’s happy and they flow to the music. As soon as the music starts playing from the truck, children start smiling from ear to ear.”

Christina summed up the event: “Come to experience and participate in the essence, flavour and unity of our cultures.”

Hackney One Carnival begins outside Hackney Town Hall at 11.30am and will form a procession through the streets, culminating in an afternoon of culture and sports at Hackney Downs Park, E8.

A PLAQUE has been unveiled on Stoke Newington Common to commemorate the struggle of all those who fought against African enslavement.

An Atlas Cedar tree was also planted on the common to symbolise the role local residents played in campaigning to end the transatlantic slave trade, from MPs and church leaders, to ordinary people who boycotted goods produced through slave labour. The trade was banned by the 1807 Act, and slavery was finally made illegal throughout the British Empire by a further Act of Parliament in 1833.

The Putting Down Roots event on 22 August, organised by Hackney Museum, saw the official unveiling of the plaque by Hackney North and Stoke Newington MP, Diane Abbott. Guest speakers included the Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Muttalip Unluer; Arthur Torrington of the Equiano Society and the Reverend Joyce Daley.

Cllr Unluer said: "Stoke Newington is located in history as a hotbed for revolutionary thinking, and a centre for people who were determined to stand against the injustice of the transatlantic slave trade. This tree will serve as a permanent reminder to residents and visitors to the Common that their stance will never be forgotten."

The unveiling of the tree was followed by a visit to the grave of Joanna Vassa, who is buried at Abney Park Cemetery. Vassa was the daughter of enslaved African and freedom campaigner Olaudah Equiano. His autobiography depicted the horrors of slavery and helped influence British lawmakers.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Hackney Downs will be given a major makeover

Downs are on the up

A SCHEME to revamp Hackney Downs has been approved and work is due to start this autumn.

The park will have a brand new multi-use games area for football and basketball; new changing rooms with a community room facility; better park rangers' accommodation; new public toilets and improved tennis facilities. All of this will be available for residents to use, as well as local schools.

Cllr Nargis Khan, Cabinet Member for Community Services, said: "Hackney's most popular green spaces are being transformed as part of an improvement programme, including Hackney Downs.

"The existing facilities will be improved, there will be greater disability access, and the new games area will allow for more types of sport to be played than is currently available. The additional tennis courts will support local development of the sport, which has become an area of growth in recent years."

Work on Hackney Downs should be completed by spring 2010. For info about Hackney's parks and green spaces, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/cp-community-parks

Book in for an historic reopening

By Marcel Reinard

ONE of Hackney's most treasured buildings is getting ready for a new lease of life.

Stoke Newington Town Hall, N16, has survived the Blitz, and seen countless operas and classical music performances. Not to mention more than 30 years of stomping feet during its jazz dance hall days with the likes of George Melly, Eartha Kitt and Barbara Windsor.

Now it is about to start taking bookings (from 14 September) ahead of its reopening in 2010, with a new team on hand to deal with requests.

The Council-funded refurbishment got under way on the Grade II Listed building last Easter, with the aim of revamping its original features. Its Art Deco design, and the camouflage exterior paintwork added to conceal it from Second World War bombings, remain two of its most striking features.

Following consultation with residents, the refurbishment will also provide an area for weddings and civil partnership receptions, as well as performances, art exhibitions and, of course, dancing.

Getting involved in 2012

Barbara Dormer

Barbara Dormer, from Clapton, was one of the graduates. She has been volunteering since her eight-year-old daughter was born. She volunteered at after school clubs, arts clubs and in the local community generally. She said: "Although I had lots of volunteering experience what I really lacked was confidence. I found out about the Personal Best programme through Working Links. I started the 13-week course straight away and it really helped boost my confidence."

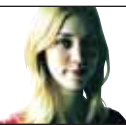

"I received so much support from the Personal Best advisors and college staff, as well as fellow learners. Now I would really like to learn more new skills by doing further training and hopefully end up working in the Olympics itself."

Diane Russell

Diane Russell, 49, also graduated. She said: "I really enjoyed the course. I was shown how to improve my CV and learned event management skills. And I'm now working as an administrator and event manager."

They now have a nationally recognised qualification and are guaranteed an interview to become one of the 70,000 official volunteers needed during the Olympic and Paralympic Games.

“Volunteering is a great way for residents to get involved with the 2012 Games now”

Personal Best is open to residents who are not in work or education, but want opportunities to volunteer to improve their skills and chances of getting a job. Graduates were presented with a certificate by Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Muttalip Unluer. They were joined by Hackney's Olympic and Paralympic Ambassador, Dervis Konuralp, a Paralympic swimmer.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, said: "Volunteering is a great way for residents to get involved with the 2012 Games. By taking part in the programme, residents can learn new skills and build up a wealth of experience before 2012."

Street name to remember Henry

CLAPTON-BORN First World War veteran Henry Allingham, who passed away in July, aged 113, is to have a road named after him.

The Council has agreed to a request by Hackney Downs Ward's Cllr Michael Desmond who felt that the RAF founding member – who for a short time was the oldest living man in the world – should be commemorated in the borough where he was born. He said: "We don't want to honour Henry just because he became the oldest man in the world. It's because he wanted to make the world a better place and did so." In February Henry made a final trip to Hackney from his Brighton care home to meet children from Northwold Primary School, after they wrote to him about a Clapton clean-up campaign.

His life spanned three centuries and six monarchs, and he is survived by five grandchildren, 12 great-grandchildren, 14 great-great grandchildren and one great-great-great grandchild. Tributes were made across the country noting Henry's bravery, compassion and even-handedness. Cllr Desmond said Henry's name would be added to a borough road as soon as a suitable opportunity arises.

Henry on his final visit to Clapton earlier this year the Council and London 2012 and funded by the London Development Agency (LDA) and Learning and Skills Council (LSC). The programme is run by The Learning Trust, which manages education services on behalf of the Council.

Snapping back

Dennis Morris (above); and one of his iconic shots of Bob Marley (below)

By
Karyn Michael

THERE can be few people in the Western world that haven't seen images of Bob Marley taken by Dennis Morris.

But less well known, is that this internationally acclaimed photographer started his career at St

Mark's Church in Dalston. Dennis Morris was born in Jamaica then moved to Hackney, aged four. As a young boy growing up in the 1960s, church was a major part of community life, and it was there he joined a photography club set up by a patron of the church, Donald Paterson.

He says: "I was obsessed. I found something I could do. When I had a camera in my hand I felt confident. Most of my friends were football mad but I spent all of my time taking photos."

Many of Dennis' earliest photographs were taken at political demonstrations. Aged just 11, his photo of a PLO rally in London was published on the front of the Daily Mirror. He was paid £16.

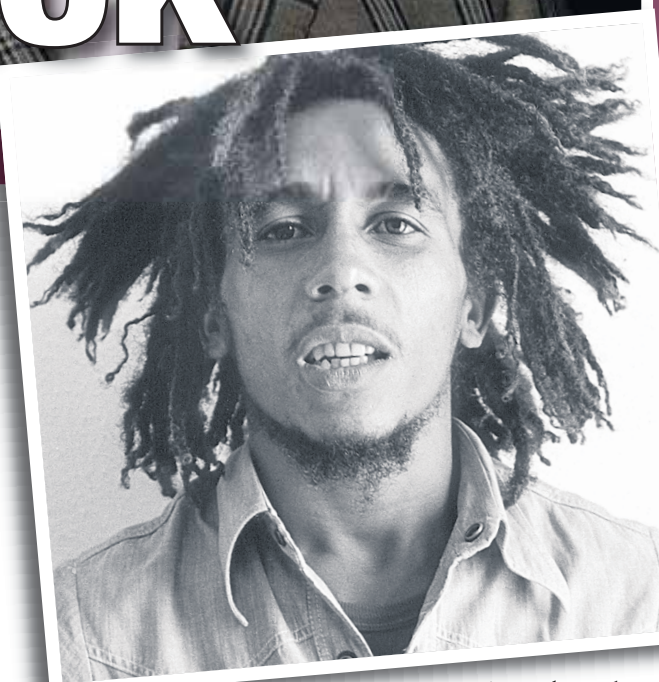

His big break came when he met Bob Marley after a sound check. Bob took a shine to the ambitious 14-year-old and invited him to be official photographer for the rest of his UK tour.

"The next morning I packed my PE bag and went off with them on tour. We went to Blackpool, Leeds and all over, but then it snowed. The rest of Bob's band couldn't handle the cold and wanted to go back to Jamaica, so they cancelled the tour and went home!"

They met again two years later, which was the start of a professional and personal relationship between them, that lasted until Bob Marley's death in 1981. Dennis' photos of Bob became famous the world over, appearing on the cover of Time Out and Melody Maker before he had even turned 17.

Not everyone was proud of Dennis' achievements, he explains: "There was a lot of friction from the West Indian community because I was taking photos of a Rasta, and back then, Rastafarians had a bad reputation.

"But Bob spun that all around and gave Jamaicans an identity. I was out on a limb with some members of the community, but I believed in what I was doing, and I knew it was a vocation."

His photojournalistic style caught the eye of other popular artists; and he would become The Sex Pistols main photographer, and go onto to build a reputation as a rock photographer working with Marianne Faithful, Grace Jones, Oasis and Tricky among others.

Dennis works and exhibits around the globe, but has recently returned to his old stomping ground. He has donated a collection of photos to Hackney Museum, which will be exhibited throughout Black History Month in October. Growing Up Black shows how the West Indian community lived in Hackney in the 1960s and 70s. More info to come in a future Hackney Today.

All your recycling questions answered

Q. Items are sometimes dumped in the street near my local recycling bank. What action does the Council take to stop this?

A: Dumping rubbish is illegal and carries a heavy penalty. It is also unnecessary, as the Council collects bulky waste items such as fridges, TVs and mattresses for free. Residents can get up to five items collected, four times a year. Furniture in good condition, like wardrobes and dining tables, is also collected for free and reused by charity project Homestore, which offers low-income households a chance to furnish their homes without getting into debt. Residents also have the option of taking large waste items to recycling centres in neighbouring Islington and Waltham Forest. The Council works closely to identify sites where illegal dumping occurs. CCTV footage is used to identify those responsible. Penalty fines range from £80 to a maximum of £2,500.

Sprouting from an old estate

By

Marcel Reinard

A NEW project on Woodberry Down estate aims to grow vegetables, fruit and herbs in one of the borough's most unlikely environments.

By using large builders' bags filled with compost, residents hope to harvest healthy produce at the currently unused Pewsham House site, and transform their surroundings at the same time.

The Healthy Spaces scheme was unveiled on 2 September, when estate residents – many of whom do not have a balcony or garden – could register for their own grow-bag.

Sam Alexander, of Groundwork London, said: "The initiative was partly started in response to the Woodberry Down regeneration programmes, where old flats were being demolished and new building work was waiting to start."

The scheme was set up by developers Berkeley Homes and Hackney Homes, which manages the borough's Council housing, in response to residents' wishes to do something with the vacant space.

Groundwork London is running the Healthy Spaces programme across London as part of the London Health Commission's Big Lottery-funded Well London project.

Making recycling more efficient

By Gracia Douglas

WITH recycling rates improving across the borough, the Council is asking residents to help out by cleaning and separating the contents of their green boxes.

Collection crews sort recycling into various compartments on their trucks. By sorting the contents of their green box, residents can make life easier for crews, which also means teams spend less time on the streets, impacting less on other road users.

Materials can be placed in multiple green boxes where space allows; grouped together in a single box; or separated using plastic bags. Any bags used are also collected and recycled.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "It is important that the Council, the crews who carry out the collections, and residents work together to make the service operate smoothly and get everyone recycling as much of their household waste as possible."

Cutting emission for 2010

By Gracia Douglas

HACKNEY has become one of the first local authorities to unite behind a national campaign to achieve a 10 per cent cut in carbon emissions during 2010.

On 1 September, 10 local authorities from across the country became part of 10:10, a project that was set up by the team behind climate film The Age of Stupid.

They now run the campaign with support from organisations including ActionAid, the Energy Saving Trust, the Carbon Trust, the Public Interest Research Centre and The Guardian newspaper.

Anyone can sign up from residents, schools and hospitals to Councils and Government departments; from corner shops to high street banks; and from scout troops to Premier League football clubs.

Cllr Sophie Linden, Cabinet Member for

Sustainability, said: "Cutting 10 per cent in one year is a bold target, but for most of us in Hackney it's an achievable one. By signing up to 10:10 we're not just promising to reduce our own emissions – we're becoming part of a national drive to hit this goal in every sector of society.

"It's easy to feel powerless in the face of a huge problem like climate change, but by bringing everyone together to take action collectively, 10:10 enables all of us to make a meaningful difference. It's the perfect opportunity to find out what's possible when we work together."

“Cutting 10 per cent in one year is a bold target, but for most of us in Hackney it's an achievable one”

Crowds gathered for the launch of 10:10 in central London

The campaign urges small changes such as using low-energy lightbulbs, turning down heating, making fewer car journeys; or insulating homes. Four major energy companies have signed up to help their customers cut energy usage.

The first 3,000 people to sign up get a free 10:10 tag – the organisation bought an old 747 plane and recycled it to make thousands of these badges.

Cardinal Pole student Abi Oyewumi (centre) celebrates her excellent grades, while a fellow pupil gets a surprise

By
Marcel Reinard

HACKNEY teenagers celebrated outstanding GCSE grades on 27 August, after the borough saw its best ever results.

There was a 10 per cent increase in the numbers of students achieving A* to C grades, including English and Maths, this year.

Additionally, 80 per cent of secondary schools in Hackney achieved results higher than last year's national average.

And individually many pupils are finalising their plans for later life, juggling higher education with extra-curricular training and work experience.

Hackney Free and

“Good for schools and for Hackney, proving Hackney schools can do as well as any other”

Hackney Free pupil Anisa Bajraktari (centre) achieved eight A grades among her 11 passes, and plans to study Chemistry, Biology Chemistry and Maths Parochial School's Hannah Alaba achieved nine As and an A*. She is now going on to study A-level Maths, History, Economics and Accountancy. "I feel happy, ecstatic, jubilant," she exclaimed.

Abi Oyewumi, formerly a student at Cardinal Pole, was pleased with her three A*s and three As, not to mention 'a ton of Bs but I'm not sure how many. Wait, what did I get the Bs for?' She is now preparing to start work experience with ITV, to kick-start her dream of becoming a director.

At the same school – and planning to stay on at its sixth form – Fiona Thompson-Shaw's results should stand her in good stead for a career in law.

She plans to study Maths, Philosophy and Ethics, and English Literature, as well as taking part in study weekends learning about corporate and family law.

GCSE newcomer Mossbourne Community Academy made headlines by far surpassing the national average. A huge 92 per cent of students received five A* to C grades; there was a 100 per cent A* to C pass rate in Science; and an 80 per cent A* to C pass rate for Modern Languages.

Academy Principal, Sir Michael Wilshaw, said: "These results are good for schools and good for Hackney, proving Hackney schools can do as well as any other."

Sharif Siddik: 1 A*, 3 As, 3Bs. Going to college to study Business Studies, 3D Design and Psychology

Fiona Thompson-Shaw: 2As, 6Bs. "I was surprised, especially for English, getting two As is a dream. I plan to go into law."

Hannah Alaba: Nine As and an A*. She is now going on to study A-level Maths, History, Economics and Accountancy.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Four of the nine Petchey Academy students who successfully completed their maths GCSE this year

Making the grade early

BEING just three years old – with no Year 11 pupils – didn't stop The Petchey Academy joining in the borough-wide GCSE success.

A group of Year Nine pupils took GCSE Statistics at the new E8 academy – with seven achieving As, 11 achieving Bs and 19, Cs. The students managed the feat in six months, only beginning the course at the start of spring term this year.

Principal David Daniel said: "They did fantastically well considering the timeframe and their age. It's also good proof that children should sometimes sit exams when they're ready and not always according to the year." He added that most of the school's students will aim to complete their Maths GCSE by the end of Year 10.

School fire update

PUPILS from Thomas Fairchild primary in Hoxton will temporarily join two other local schools following a fire that devastated the Victorian building last month.

The decision was taken to ensure youngsters were able to return to class and begin the new school year in September. With 300 plus pupils, the school said it was unable to keep all of the children together on one site, therefore, it will divide according to year group and join Whitmore Primary School or the new Tomlinson Children's Centre, E8.

All students will be dropped off and picked up by parents and guardians at Whitmore school and a free bus will take Tomlinson Centre pupils to their site.

Headteacher Shona Ferguson said: "We will make sure that the children get together as a whole school regularly to retain our identity and maintain on both sites the values that make our school unique."

An investigation into the cause of the fire is still being held.

The Japan Matsuri Festival, Spitalfields, 19 September, 10am-8pm.

By Marcel Reinard

YAKISOBA, tempura, sushi, sake and a wide range of culture, arts and crafts will be on offer at an all-day festival for everything Japanese.

As part of a year of celebrations marking the 150 year anniversary of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty of Amity and Commerce, much that creates Japan's vibrancy will fill in and around Spitalfields market. London now has a Japanese community of over 60,000 people, and organisers hope it is an opportunity for them to celebrate with their family and friends of all nationalities.

Visitors can get involved in the Bon dance – a traditional festival dance with music – and watch classic Japanese calligraphy. Martial arts demonstrations of Akido, Kendo, Laido and Genkiko will be featured along with a wealth of music performances.

Children will also have the chance to learn about the country's culture, with origami workshops and a 'manga wall'.

And a Japanese festival would not feel quite complete without amateur singing. The country that gave the world karaoke also lays claim to an amateur singing show that has run for 60 years, a competition to be lovingly recreated – for better or for worse – for Hackney ears.

Work from Keith Tyson's exhibition at Parasol Unit

By Louise Hudson, Dalston resident

Cloud Choreography and Other Emergent Systems, 16 Sept-11 Nov, Parasol Unit, Foundation for Contemporary Art, N1

Artist Keith Tyson brings together several groups of his works for a new exhibition focusing on the systems and processes that inform his practice. With a style that intends to combine science with poetic artistry, the 2002 Turner Prize winner, questions and explores how and why things including artwork come into being.

Th exhibition falls into two parts: the lower gallery, featuring works that focus on natural processes such as nature sculptures and paintings; and the other focusing on mathematical, man-man systems.

PREVIEW Images of residents replace the orange boards on the estate windows

By Louise Hudson

I Am Here, Laburnum St, E2, 13 Sept to Autumn 2011

A Haggerston building scheduled to be demolished has created an unlikely artistic canvas in the borough.

Samuel House, a five-storey block in the regeneration district of Haggerston West and Kingsland Estate, may have had its windows sealed.

But artists have replaced the orange boards with large-scale photos of the estate's residents.

The block was already a peculiar photo opportunity, sitting next to the picturesque Regent's Canal, but public artwork I Am Here sets out to create a two-way progress as the faces from the window stare back. Created by Fugitive Images, the creation was part-sponsored by as part of a partnership with the Council and will remain on display at Haggerston West and Kingsland Estate for at least another two years.

On their way to the stage

MORE than 60 young aspiring actors vied for a place with a Hoxton-based performing arts agency last month.

Following a first series of auditions in May this year, Hoxton Street Casting – a youth-led arts agency funded by Team Hackney – held three days of auditions for 13 to 19-year-old performers who acted in front of a panel of industry professionals.

Only 13 young people were chosen by the agency and the group will now take part in a six-week training programme led by writers, actors and staff from the BBC. Once completed they will receive agency representation and an entry on Spotlight, a top resource for casting directors.

Successful applicant Ruby Rose Rahmen, 18, said: “I was overwhelmed when I found out I had been taken on by the agency. I’m really looking forward to working on my acting technique and meeting other actors my age, and of course to auditions.”

Hoxton Street Casting will be holding more auditions in October, and young people in Hackney and surrounding areas are invited to apply.

Young people taking part in the Immediate Theatre Exposure performance at the Hackney Empire Studio Theatre

Summer show

By Damilola Alli-Balogun, 17

I HAD just finished my first year at college and I wanted something to do in the holidays.

I received a flyer through my door from my housing association, Family Mosaic, about a free, two-week summer youth theatre programme called Exposure. I thought it looked good.

I really enjoyed working with Immediate Theatre and getting the chance to perform. I really liked the dancing as I don’t really dance.

I also enjoyed the acting and creating my own character – she was not like me at all and quite different from all the characters I have played in the past. I got to perform a monologue on my own on stage which was really challenging but fun.

Our performance on 21 August at the Hackney Empire studio theatre, was great, better than I expected – the effort, the energy, you could really feel it and everyone was really enthusiastic.

Working with Immediate Theatre gave me the chance to be in a new environment and meet new people. I learnt to adapt and I think I coped really well, especially as there were so many different people to work with – we all had to get along.

It was a great experience. I really hope I can do more things like this in my spare time. I’m training to be an accountant, but this doesn’t mean that drama isn’t important to me. It helps me to be more confident and believe in myself more.

Youth music event is ‘Dy-Na-Mi-Tee’

By Bianca Manu, 15

Inner City Lives, 26 June, Ocean Mare Street – organised by Hackney youth music initiative Rising Tide.

The show was opened by DJ Spooky, whose seamless mixing kept the audience entertained and eager to see what else was on offer that night. Their anticipation was soon met with Groove Control’s soulful sounds. A ray of talent and acts were showcased on the night from East Londoner Sky’s spoken word poetry to Bianca Tia and Hydro: both Rising Tide mentees.

Isan serenaded the audience with his mellow summer sounds assorted with positive messages.

MOBO award winning artist Akala’s music was rich with rhetorical questions which were well received on the night. To follow were the youth group Sound of the Streets who are catching on like wild fire amongst young people in Hackney.

Kele Le Roc’s memorable performance on the night included the premiere of her new song ‘Retro’. Another artist who has featured on Channel AKA was Ny who sang ‘Street Soldier’ accompanied with a tasteful Funky House instrumental. The night was nicely closed by Ms Dynamite. Inner City Lives was a sure success and anyone who attended would agree it would be great if this happened more regularly.

Skills for life

By James Willsher

SHE was just a teenager when she was made homeless, but Ingrid Leduc is back on her feet and now passing on her experiences to others.

After a living arrangement with her aunt broke down when she was 17, Ingrid was placed in temporary accommodation and referred to the Homerton Space Project, a programme providing housing and life management skills for 16 to 18-year-olds in Hackney.

The project gave her somewhere secure to live and, with support from link worker Lanre Odunlami and other staff, skills such as budgeting, paying rent, and cooking healthy food. She said: "All the residents felt at home – it was like a family environment."

Now aged 20, Ingrid has worked at Clarks Shoes for three years and moved into a flat. "Since moving, I've been able to use all the skills I've learned and am putting them into practice," she said.

She has also completed a BTEC National Diploma in Business, enrolled on a higher education course at Queen Mary, University of London and has completed a mentoring course to offer support to others in need.

Cllr Nargis Khan, Cabinet Member for Community Services, said: "The Council is committed to enabling people to have more choice and control in their lives, as well as ensuring everyone in the

NEWS IN BRIEF

The group after their third and final climb

Climbing high for charity

A HACKNEY resident has scaled the three highest peaks in England, Scotland and Wales in just 24 hours to raise money for a local charity.

Taking on the National Three Peaks Challenge, James Man climbed Scafell Pike, Ben Nevis and Snowdon, alongside colleagues and members of Hackney Family Backup. On the way they battled difficult weather conditions – and many inevitable traffic jams.

James said: "It was a wonderful experience and a great opportunity to raise money."

Hackney Family Backup aims to improve the lives of disabled children and their families by promoting community support and social inclusion.

Chief Executive, Sheila Ramdular, added: "This is an amazing achievement and we are very grateful to the team for their efforts on our behalf."

Praise for long hours scheme

HOMERTON hospital's work in developing ways for junior doctors to best use their time without working excessive hours has been recognised with an award nomination.

The Health Service Journal has commended the hospital for its innovative Taking Care 24/7 scheme. It was set up in 2007 to meet European Working Time Directive requirements – which aims to cut extreme working hours – while maintaining effective training time for junior doctors.

The hospital was also applauded for complying with the directive two years before the programme went live.

The awards ceremony will be at the Grosvenor House Hotel, in central London, on 30 November.

Fitness for young women

A FREE event for young women will aim to increase awareness of healthy activities in the borough and focus on enjoying exercise.

The Wellbeing Weekender from 11 to 13 September follows on from a successful event in June, where attendees sampled a range of activities including yoga, belly dancing, massage and the computer game Wii Fit, as well as hearing inspirational stories of personal success. The event will also be a chance for 13 to 19-year-olds to learn more about the Young Women's Group (YWG), which has organised the event, and other activities for young women in Hackney, in collaboration with the Council's Youth Service.

Splash course for beginners

By Marcel Reinard

A GROUP of non-swimmers aged over 50 faced their fear of water during a summer crash course at Kings Hall Leisure Centre.

The free one-week course in August left the new swimmers with the confidence to enter the pool and develop their abilities.

It was funded by the Sharp End resource centre for older people, and delivered by GLL, which operates Hackney's leisure centres in partnership with the Council.

Beginner Rita Coltelli, 55, said: "I've always had a fear of water from when I was a young girl. Coming on the course has given me so much confidence and with a few more lessons I hope to be able to learn to swim properly. It feels great for my self esteem and good for my health too."

SEVENTY years ago, on 3 September 1939, a radio broadcast by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, announced that Britain was at war with Germany.

Despite hopes that a Second World War would be avoided, local authorities, including Hackney, Shoreditch and Stoke Newington, had been preparing for air raids since 1935. The Nazis did not in fact, unleash a bombing campaign against London until 1940, nevertheless, the city was in a state of anticipation. For some, this meant evacuation to the countryside, an experience recalled by Constance Charlton, née Stubbs, whose family left their home in De Beauvoir Square, on 1 September, 1939. She describes the summer of 1939 as seeming 'very quiet', despite 'disconcerting happenings' such as the appearance of an Anderson air raid shelter in the garden and black-out curtains and gas masks in the house.

She wrote: "On the morning of 1 September we rose early and got dressed in several layers of clothing including our winter coats, even though there was no sign that the good weather was about to break. We left the house laden with rucksacks and gas masks. As we walked down the steps of our house my mother said 'goodbye home'. On 20 October the house was bombed."

For others, it meant taking up voluntary posts in civil defence. The Archives holds the papers of Clapton resident Thomas Browne, who joined the Air Raid Precautions (ARP) service before the start of the war and kept a diary. In his entry for 3 September, 1939, he writes: "Listened in to the radio declaration of war at 11am. When warning sirens sounded a few minutes after, tested family respirators. When traffic resumed, people continued with their usual Sunday outings, carrying their respirators. The British spirit – business as usual!"

As the ARP services settled into their new roles, attention was paid to maintaining the morale of voluntary personnel while they waited for raids to begin. The Shoreditch ARP began to produce a monthly newsletter, 'Under Control' in October 1939, which contained a preface from the chairman of the ARP Emergency Committee, who wrote: "Many many thanks to you all from the controller to the tin-hatted messengers, for all you are doing for the people of Shoreditch. When you were engaged by the Council for official duties none of us, Councillors or staff ever visualised this happening, but the moment it did everyone of you jumped into it and volunteered for duty."

Hackney's publication, entitled 'Civil Defence' first appeared in January 1940. Stoke Newington ARP also had a magazine called 'SNARP'. In the first issue, dated 29 September 1939, the ARP Controller writes: "The 'SNARP' will, I hope, be a light-hearted little magazine." He adds: "Although we have been fortunate in having nearly a month's immunity from air raids, no one knows how suddenly and unexpectedly an attack may come."

It came a year later in September 1940, and the Archives contain many stories of the effect of the war on the area. In 1939, however, residents could only wait to see what would happen and continue with their lives.

Street party

John Campbell Road residents in Dalston make the most of the sunshine at their party to celebrate the completion of improvements to their street

All stories by
Gabriel Harriss

THERE was a right old knees-up in John Campbell Road as residents celebrated the completion of a project to improve their street.

People of all ages welcomed the work that included using reclaimed paving, planting new trees and creating cycle parking.

Community spirit was out in force as adults swapped stories among the children playing street games, and all to the backdrop of live music.

Representatives from local businesses – including Rio Cinema and Stone

Cave restaurant – also turned up to join the activities.

The improvements were carried out as part of the Council's Streets for People scheme and aim to create a new, high-quality environment using natural, reclaimed materials that are sustainable and in keeping with the existing character of the street.

They were completed with funding from Transport for London's Area Base Scheme programme to improve the streets around Gillett Square.

The improvements are at the forefront of the redevelopment of Dalston and include a completed scheme along Kingsland Passage and proposed works along Bradbury Street, Boleyn Road and the Crossway/Mildmay junction.

“With support from everyone involved, this improvement scheme has been a great success”

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “The Council is committed to improving the lives of its residents, businesses and visitors. With support from everyone involved, this streets improvement scheme has been a great success, helping to make the area a more attractive place for people to visit.”

NEWS IN BRIEF

TfL is looking for volunteers to trial a card for people with 'hidden' disabilities

Mystery shoppers needed

Transport for London (TfL) is asking for volunteers with disabilities that are not immediately obvious to help trial a new Travel Support Card.

The card can be shown to staff and other passengers in situations where a passenger with disabilities such as autism requires additional support and assistance on public transport in the capital.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “This card is a great idea and will be a huge benefit to our residents with hidden disabilities by giving them more confidence when using public transport. I urge those residents to get involved and volunteer to help TfL with its trials.”

TfL are working with disability charities, but more volunteers are needed. Anyone who would like to take part should call Kathryn Lyon at TfL on: 020 7027 8340.

Electric car charging

Residents are being urged to give their views on plans to install electric vehicle charging points in Hackney.

The Council is submitting a bid to TfL to fund the installation of charging points for electric vehicles that give out fewer air emissions and have cheaper fuel per mile running costs than regular cars and vans.

TfL particularly wants to hear from people that already have electric vehicles, or are considering swapping their current petrol/diesel engine vehicle for an electric one. The aim is to get an idea of where charging points should be located in the borough and the type of car parks that charging points should be sited in.

The deadline for responses is 28 September. For further information call Ben Kennedy on:

020 8356 8023. To complete the survey online visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/consultation

Car park to celebrate green travel

A car park in Haggerston is set to go green for a day to promote and celebrate eco-friendly modes of travel.

As part of European Mobility Week, residents are invited to the Whiston and Goldsmiths Estate on 19 September when the car park will become ‘Green for a Day’ and hold free bike check ups, film, music and gardening demonstrations.

Estate residents, along with the Council and Hackney Homes, have been working with two young architects from TICArchitecture who are behind the concept. European Mobility Week is dedicated to environmentally-friendly ways to travel and is celebrated in cities all around Europe.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “The Council is committed to green travel and wants to support and encourage all those who live, work and study in Hackney to move greener. This event will showcase a range of green activities to demonstrate how everyone can do their bit to help make the borough a greener, cleaner place.”

Job Profile Danny Dhanasiri

The current Chauffeur & Attendant for the Speaker of Hackney speaks to Hackney Today about a role he has carried out for 20 years

What are the main responsibilities of the role?

I'm the Speaker's Chauffeur and Attendant, and take them to different functions and events in and out of the borough. It's a very challenging job, but also rewarding.

In what ways is it challenging?

At times it can be very busy with lots of events to attend –

it's important to plan ahead and do your homework to make sure you know where you are going. Time is very important and the tight schedule means we can't get lost. Traffic in London can be a real problem!

How is the job rewarding?

I've been doing it for 20 years – I really enjoy it! At times you are the eyes and ears for the Speaker and they are very appreciative of what I do. Through this job I've seen a lot more of Hackney and met lots of new people.

Are there any special requirements for fulfilling this role?

Yes, you must have a clean driving licence and be flexible in the hours you are willing to work – including evenings and weekends.

LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY THE HACKNEY (PARKING PLACES) (ALL ZONES) (AMENDMENT NO. 1) ORDER 2009 THE HACKNEY (DISABLED PERSON PARKING PLACES) (AMENDMENT NO. 16) ORDER 2009 TRO 535

1. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on 4th September 2009 the Council of the London Borough of Hackney made the above-mentioned Orders under sections 6, 45, 46, 49 and 124 of and Part IV of Schedule 9 to the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 as amended by the Local Government Act 1985 and the Traffic Management Act 2004.

2. The general effect of the Orders will be to amend the operational details of the Council's companion badge scheme so that:-

- companion badge holders will no longer be allowed to park in the Borough's 'permit holders only' parking places;
- companion badge holders will be able to park, without time restriction and without displaying their blue badge clock, in the disabled persons parking places within their 'home' controlled parking zone - the zone in which they are resident.

3. Copies of the Orders, which will come into force on 9th September 2009, other relevant Orders, and other documents giving more detailed particulars of the Orders, can be inspected during normal office hours on Mondays to Fridays inclusive, until the expiration of a period of six weeks from the date on which the Orders are made, in the reception area, London Borough of Hackney, 263 Mare Street, London, E8 3HT. Further information may be obtained by contacting Helpdesk on 020 8356 2897.

4. If any person wishes to question the validity of either of the Orders, or of any provision contained therein on the grounds that it not within the powers conferred by the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 or that any requirement of the Act or of any instrument under the Act has not been complied with, that person may, within six weeks of the date on which the Orders are made, apply for the purpose to the High Court.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Hoxton Apprentice

www.hoxtonapprentice.com

Hayley Ferris, 25, graduated from the Hoxton Apprentice in April 2007 as top of her class, and still works there as a waitress. A single parent from Hackney with two young children, she always wanted to work to support her family, but found it difficult to find a job flexible enough to meet her childcare needs.

Hayley came to the Hoxton Apprentice through the Host programme. She enjoyed the training and support the course provided, earned an NVQ Level 2 in Food and Drink Services and is enjoying her new career as a waitress.

She said: "I am so pleased to be able to work, earn a living and provide for my family. I feel it is really important for my children to see me working and having confidence in myself and that I can still have time to spend with my family."

Hayley's ambitions for the future include taking on a managing or supervising role and to carry on providing for her family.

Bread & butter pudding laced with raspberries

Serves 6

Preparation time
15 mins

Cooking time
25 mins

Ingredients

- 5 slices of white bread, buttered
- 3 eggs
- 3 tbsp of caster sugar
- 800 ml full fat milk
- 1 large egg
- 1 handful of raspberries
- 1 tsp of brown sugar to drizzle on top

Method

- Preheat your oven to 180°C
- Cut the slices into pieces, to fit in your pan
- Add raspberries while arranging bread, and sprinkle a few on top
- Mix eggs, sugars and milk in a food processor, then pour over bread
- Sprinkle a bit of brown sugar on top. Put into oven for about 40 minutes.
- Dust with icing sugar and serve with vanilla ice cream.

The Hoxton Apprentice is a social enterprise set up to train unemployed Hackney people – both in the kitchen and front of house.

Six-month apprenticeships prepare people for the workplace and give them the chance to gain an NVQ in Hospitality. Profits are returned to Training For Life, the charity which operates the restaurant, to deliver more training for unemployed people.

More at the market

RESIDENTS are invited to a drop-in consultation event about the Ridley Road market improvement scheme on 10 September.

The Council is investing £1million to improve the market, this will include a new stall layout and improved street lighting. It is hoped these changes will make the market more inviting for existing visitors, and attract new people to the area.

The first round of consultation on the proposed changes has already taken place – thanks to all those who gave feedback.

Residents and business people can talk to Council staff and design consultants about the proposals from 3.30-8.30pm at Centerprise Trust, 136 Kingsland High Street, E8.

For more info, call Ruth Davies on: 020 8356 7741; or e-mail: ruth.davies@hackney.gov.uk

Gambling views

VIEWS are being sought on the Council's revised Gambling Policy, which sets out how it proposes to deal with licence applications in the future.

The Council must publish a gambling policy at least once every three years and the draft policy is based on Government guidance.

Anyone who wants to apply for licences for premises such as betting shops or amusement arcades will have to follow the policy when preparing their applications.

For more info, call: 020 8356 4942.

To view the revised policy and take part in the questionnaire – as well as be in with the chance of winning a £25 Marks and Spencer voucher – visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/gambling

The Mayor & Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2006.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services.

They all hold advice surgeries where you can meet your local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, they can often point you in the right direction and tell you who you need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/I-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

The Mayor

Jules Pipe

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of the Council who is elected annually from the borough's 57 councillors. Cllr Muttalip Unluer is the current Speaker.

Hackney Council is committed to improving services, increasing opportunities for all, and creating a safer, cleaner, greener borough. Here we focus on a service that helps to make this possible:

GETTING THE JOB DONE

Alan Stevens, Group Manager for Transport

ALAN has worked in transport for his whole adult life. Originally he drove London buses, including the 277, which runs through Hackney. He came to the Council in 1994 as a transport manager and is now head of a team of more than 40 people – including 14 bus drivers, 11 bus escorts, and 13 Meals on Wheels drivers – all working from a depot in Morning Lane. The 61-year-old said: “It’s good fun, really. We are all a good crowd and we make sure we get the job done.

“It’s very lighthearted, and I think you have to be. Because it can be a stressful job if you’ve got people who need extra care with you. “All the service users are different characters. We go to centre meetings and have a chat with everybody. “We don’t like to be just in the office – we like to meet the service users and find out what they think and need. “You get some praise, and the odd problem, and we have a bit of a laugh.”

Vital assistance every day

By
Nick Rutherford

THE Council’s Transport Department offers a vital service to the people who use it.

It is divided into two sections. Meals on Wheels delivers food to residents’ homes. Transport staff take passengers aged over 65 and adults with learning disabilities to day centres, as well as to the Council’s Festival for Older People events.

More than 370 people use the transport service, while hundreds also have meals delivered, choosing from a cross-cultural menu, as well as vegetarian and diabetic food. Each meal is cooked slowly in a specially-designed oven in the back of the van while a driver makes a round, so all the food is hot and ready to eat when delivered.

Alan Stevens, Transport Manager, said: “The services we provide are vital. Even when we had the bad snow and people couldn’t get to work, we all came in and made sure we got the meals out.”

All home visits and their outcomes are recorded as part of a system which can be used to alert other Council departments – such as social services – if a problem or issue arises, to make sure no one slips through the net.

Part of the Council Transport Department’s role is to take passengers to events such as Hackney’s Festival for Older People (above)

MORE INFO

Residents receiving the Meals on Wheels service are referred by Homerton hospital, GPs, health professionals and the Council’s Access Team. For self-referrals, call: 020 8356 6262; or e-mail: access@hackney.gov.uk

Adapted Housing Transfer Scheme

Has your home been adapted or is it wheelchair accessible?

We have 300 families in Hackney who need accessible housing

We can offer you:

A choice of properties in Hackney
Help with moving costs and decorating

You could get a high priority move if:

You are a Council tenant living in an adapted property which can be re-used and you are willing to move out of it.
You are a Housing Association tenant and your landlord agrees.

If you can help us please contact the Letting Initiative Team on 020 8356 2977

Improving Mabley Green

Following discussions with residents and the Mabley Green User Group, Hackney Council have created draft proposals to improve Mabley Green, including suggestions to create multiple ‘themed walkways’ in the space.

Funding has also been secured for a second artificial turf pitch, new changing rooms and an outdoor gym which will help to increase the ways in which the Green is used by local people.

We want to know what you think and let you have your say on the design.

You can access the designs and survey by visiting www.consultationfinder.com/hackney and selecting ‘Mabley Green Improvements Survey’ or by calling 020 8356 6478.

You can also view the designs and meet the architects behind the scheme at the Hackney Wick Festival on 26th September 2009.
